

Media Contact:

Paige Beaton

Talentoday

Office: (415) 655-1040

Mobile: (617) 314-3412

Email: P.Beaton@talentoday.com

Empowering individuals to discover their unique assets on the go, Talentoday launches iOS version of science-based personality test

Multi-million user people analytics company uses psychology to help you to know yourself better in just 10 minutes

San Francisco--April 7, 2015-- Talentoday (www.talentoday.com) announced the release of a brand new iOS application that satisfies the demand from users with an on the go way to experience the company's scientifically designed personality test. Developed by accredited psychologists, the Talentoday assessment is also available online. Since the site's launch in January 2014, the test has been taken by millions of people around the world. Within 10 minutes, users receive in-depth insights about their soft skills, motivations and personality - a report that would typically only be available for a large fee and with an expensive debriefing from a career coach.

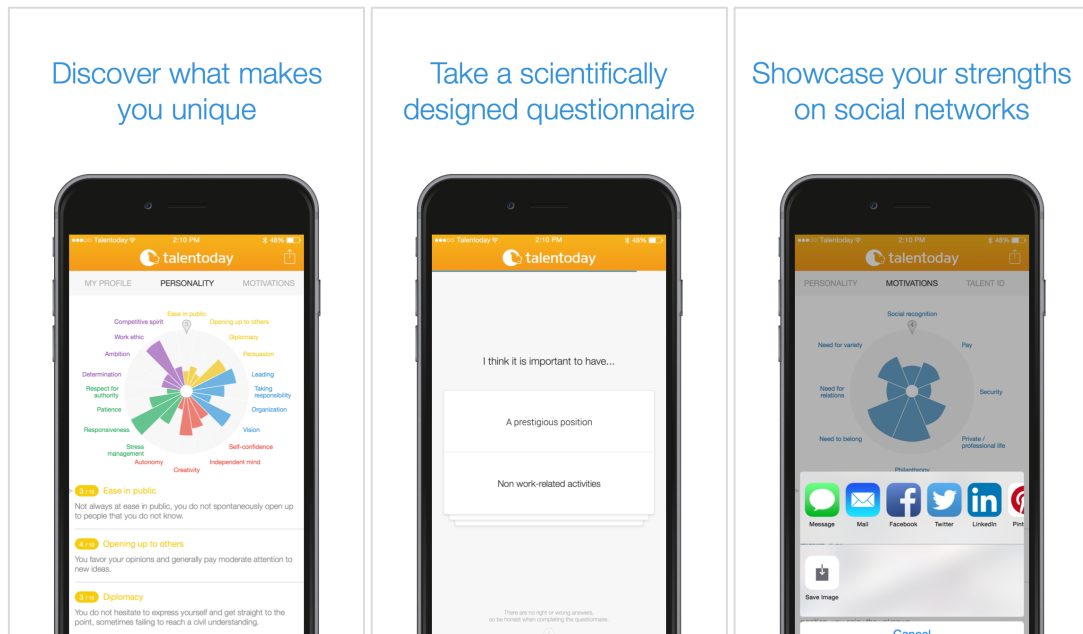

From students seeking internships, to professionals preparing for interviews, or even someone who's simply looking for a fun way to compare personalities with others, Talentoday empowers individuals to discover and showcase their unique soft skills. This user-friendly experience is now available for free in the App Store, challenging the distribution of older, more traditional assessment tools, such as Myers-Briggs, StrengthsFinder, or other expensive solutions.

"Thanks to technology, modern psychology finally comes to consumers. We are bringing human science to every device because we believe that a clear understanding of who you are can drive you to better success and fulfillment," says Pierre-François Verley, co-founder, psychologist and CEO of Talentoday.

In a recent survey, more than 94% of test takers found their results to be accurate. Talentoday maintains a user-centric approach, allowing individuals to learn and share their results for free on social networks with their friends, coworkers, and peers.

Talentoday is not only providing the free assessment for consumers, but it is also revolutionizing the field of people analytics and data-driven recruitment with their SaaS solution used by enterprises around the world. The release of the iOS application supports the company's commitment to continuous product development and encourages users to discover and explore their soft skills, fostering self-discovery and reducing mismatches with job positions and future employment opportunities.

Download the free iOS application and discover your unique personality: <https://appsto.re/us/602fx.i>

About Talentoday

Talentoday improves career success by delivering personal insights based on psychometrics and predictive analytics. The online social career guidance solution provides a free assessment for individuals and a cloud-based framework for career and HR experts to scale and optimize effective job placement. Millions of users and 100 clients in more than 160 countries have chosen Talentoday to increase the outcome of finding the perfect career fit. Founded by accredited psychologists and HR experts, Talentoday is an affiliate member of the International Test Commission and adheres to the American Psychological Association standards. Headquartered in San Francisco, California, Talentoday also has operations in Paris, France.

###